1. Explain the differences between three possible drivers of election outcomes: persuasion, mobilization, and fundamentals.

2. Why do Goldstein, Dallek, and Rivlin think that we should pay careful attention to persuasion and mobilization even though fundamentals are the most important influence on national election outcomes?